Note: This is an aspirational / dream resume for a CIT2011 coursework exercise (future-self CV per the course guide and Harvard-style strong-resume ideas). Roles below are goals, not current employment.

OBJECTIVE

Computer Science student seeking beginner-friendly junior web or software roles where I can practise clean HTML/CSS, learn JavaScript and Git with mentors, and grow into reliable delivery on small features and documentation.

EDUCATION

BSc Computer Science (in progress)

University of Technology, Jamaica | Sep 2025 – May 2029

- Focus: programming fundamentals, web development (CIT2011), algorithms, databases.
- Building a multi-page HTML/CSS portfolio and organised lab practice.

Ardenne High School

Sep 2020 – Jul 2025

- CSEC studies including Information Technology, Mathematics, and Physics.

LEARNING SKILLS

Now: HTML5, CSS, semantic markup, basic accessibility, file organisation.

Next: JavaScript basics, Git/GitHub workflow, responsive layouts, browser DevTools.

Tools: VS Code, Chrome/Firefox DevTools, GitHub (zacharyhuttonutech).

Habits: clear writing, asking questions early, meeting deadlines, backing up work.

ASPIRATIONAL EXPERIENCE (GOALS)

Junior Web Developer (goal)

Jamaica tech team or remote-friendly company | after more study

- Build clean HTML/CSS pages with guidance from senior developers.
- Fix small bugs, write short docs, and learn from code review.

Software Engineering Intern (imagined)

Kingston / Montego Bay firm or remote internship | summers ahead

- Support a real product with tickets, pairing, and scoped tasks.
- Practise Git branching, teamwork, and small feature delivery.

Campus practice (goal)

UTech clubs, hackathons, beginner-friendly repos

- Join peer projects and keep a public GitHub that shows labs and practice pages.

SELECTED COURSEWORK / PRACTICE

- CIT2011 IA1 portfolio site (HTML5 + one CSS file, multi-page navigation).
- CIT2011 Labs 1–4: HTML basics, CSS styling, images/media, semantic structure.
- Personal study notes on The Richest Man in Babylon (Seven Cures / Five Laws).
